Description (draft): The use of social media to promote library programs and resources has exploded over the past few years. In this session, we will hear from local librarians who use such sites as Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and other social media sites to reach library users and promote resources. Are some sites more useful than others, and what may be the pitfalls in using them?"

I wasn't sure how long each panelist will have to present, but I told her we would get back to her with the final details after our Sept. 8th meeting. I told her there would be 3 panelists including her and the program is 1.5 hours long so assume approx. 20-25 min to present. We can confirm that with her after Sept. 8th.

Other Upcoming Events

* Shared Google Doc for upcoming events

The RI Emergency Preparedness Conference had a speaker. I believe she is from Cranston Public Schools. I can get her name. She talked about online safety for YA's. Are you interested in her for a speaker?

Her name is Tonianne Napolitano, from Cranston Public Schools. Her talk was on Implications of Social Media for First Responders, but the majority of it appeared to be good for anyone. I'm sure she could tweak the presentation, or it may just be good the way it is.
